History

Teen Response, Inc., was founded in 1993 by ex-police officers, John R. Keuffer, III and Eugene "Buddy" Campbell. It began with the "Teen Response with Buddy and John Radio Show" and has expanded to the Teen Response Project and the Teen Response Outreach Program.

Through these mediums we have successfully reached hundreds of youth. We believe that working towards goals and assuming a partnership role translates into respecting and claiming ownership of those goals.

Goals

The primary goal of Teen Response, Inc., is to provide positive partnerships with youth, so they may be productive members of their community. Our goal is to...

'Build a Better Future Through the Voices of our Youth'

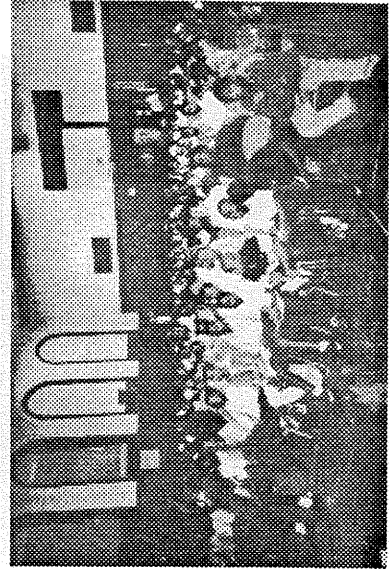

Teen Response, Inc., will accomplish this by utilizing these three programs:

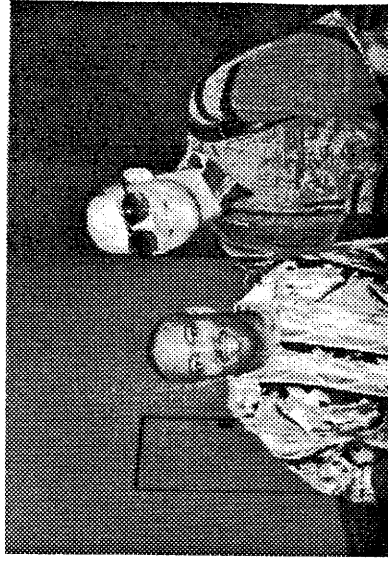

- "Teen Response with Buddy and John" radio and cable T.V. shows. This allows for positive support, motivation and recognition of youth-related issues.

- Teen Response Project forms youth councils in every community. Serves as the voice of youth to develop positive leadership and community responsibility skills.

- Teen Response Outreach Program Utilizes professional athletes such as: Chris Barber (Tampa Bay Buccaneers), Karl Rhodes (Chicago Cubs) and Dave Justice (Atlanta Braves) and many more to go into schools and provide empowerment and positive messages.
